

Dear Esteemed Speakers and Moderators,

we are delighted to soon welcome you to Hamburg as a valued contributor to the upcoming International Conference of Emergency Medicine. We would like to kindly remind you of our shared commitment to maintaining a professional, respectful environment that reflects the highest standards of academic integrity and ethical dialogue. All professional interactions should support collaborative learning and constructive discussion.

To help create an inclusive and respectful atmosphere, we ask that speakers avoid:

- A decorative graphic element consisting of a stylized, multi-colored 'E' shape with a gradient from orange to yellow.
- Addressing geopolitical conflicts, international disputes, or politically sensitive matters unrelated to healthcare and science.
 - Making remarks that could be interpreted as political commentary, criticism of specific countries, or advocacy regarding international policies.
 - Using slides, visuals, or data that introduce political views or controversial geopolitical stances.
 - Employing discriminatory language or imagery referencing race, gender, religion, nationality, or any other identity.
 - Using hate speech, inflammatory language, or any content that could be seen as offensive or exclusionary.

Our aim is to ensure a safe, welcoming, and intellectually enriching experience for everyone. Should you have any questions or need guidance about your presentation content, please reach out to our Scientific Coach.

Thank you for your understanding, cooperation, and dedication to making this conference meaningful and respectful for all.

Best regards,

Dr. Andreas Hübner
